

MEMORANDUM FOR: ~~John~~

Suggest that we have a last minute round-up at 8:30 tomorrow to make that you & Art have everything
you need to brief the AVM.
Gardie is taking care of all the logistics and I believe that part of it is in order.

I am responding to your telephone request to this office on 18 February concerning a list of briefings that may be of interest to various members of the Space Council. The Center does give such briefings which focus on how we use photo interpretation methods and techniques in certain substantive areas.

Three briefings that are now available concern separate Soviet ICBM weapons systems. In each, a hypothetical Silo construction sequence is postulated, using a three-dimensional model derived from known information such as parade photography, and analogs with prevailing U.S. practice. Each briefing can be delivered in under thirty minutes.

I am sorry that we were not able to reach you before you left on your trip. Please telephone me on your return. I should like to discuss further the kinds of briefings you are seeking.

MEMORANDUM FOR: [ ]

SUBJECT : [ ] Visit to Washington, 16-20 February 1970

In the conversations I had with the [ ] and [ ] on the [ ] forthcoming trip, the following points emerged. It was emphasized that beyond the "getting to know you personally" part, [ ] will be visiting as an intelligence manager. He wants to avoid substantive discussions and organizational briefings. It has become increasingly clear that management and budgetary problems are vexing [ ] and he sees the pressure growing over the next year or so. ILLE 25X1

On the management side, [ ] mentioned talks on methods of sorting out priorities within and between collection, processing and analysis and the meshing of demands on resources by collection and analysis. He is worried especially about the impact of new technical collection programs and about ADP. Relative to these, but not exclusively, [ ] is also concerned about the procurement and retention of capable people. If anyone has thought of good advice to give a manager whose organization is heavily reliant on a shifting body of military officers, [ ] should be happy to hear it. (In this context, the habit of [ ] of filling civilian slots with retired officers should be noted. [ ] gets a very mixed bag. In any case, [ ] military experience is being bought at the expense of youth and vitality). 25X1

On the budgetary side, [ ] is under the standard pressure in the [ ] government to reduce expenditures. He is worried, however, that plans in the works to consolidate various components of the defense and service staffs will hit him with new pressures. He said that with over 800 people (by far the largest number in any defense staff component) he is an outstanding target. He is, therefore, interested in new fiscal control methods, as a 25X1 defensive strong point to ward off the inspectors who are keen to find soft spots, as well as a means to give him better control. In this area, he probably would be interested in a general discussion with [ ] on PPB and identification of techniques possibly adaptable to the DIS environment.

[ ] also would like to know if there are any particular subjects on which he might be quizzed while at CIA, with an eye to doing some homework. He is particularly keen on not having too tight a schedule so that (if our people have the time to spare him) especially interesting discussions won't have to be terminated in mid-stream. I've had this point mentioned to me by several people; I think it's a [ ] reaction to the seemingly frenetic American pace. In summary, I'd hope that the [ ] schedule can be held to a few appointments with top people aimed at general talks on the subjects mentioned above. Also, [ ] clearly would rather have a few gaps in his schedule than to try to meet a hectic round of detailed discussions.
